Corporate Mental Wellness & Counseling Platform

Deliverable 3: Use-Case Flow Specification

Use Case ID: UC-01

Use Case Name: Schedule a Confidential Counseling Session

Primary Actor: Corporate Employee

Supporting Actor: Licensed Therapist

Goal: Allow an employee to book an available counseling appointment while keeping their corporate identity hidden from the therapist.

1. Preconditions

• The employee has access to the platform and has an active session.
• The system has generated an anonymized pseudo-ID for the employee.
• At least one licensed therapist and appointment availability are registered in the system.

2. Postconditions

• A valid appointment is stored and associated with the employee's pseudo-ID.
• The employee receives a booking confirmation containing the appointment date, time, and therapist details.
• The therapist can see the assigned appointment and pseudo-ID, but not the employee's corporate email or employee ID.

3. Main Success Scenario

1. The employee opens the counseling section.
2. The system identifies the employee through their anonymized pseudo-ID.
3. The employee requests available therapists and appointment slots.
4. The system displays available therapists and slots, with times converted to the employee's selected time zone.
5. The employee selects a therapist and an available slot.
6. The system checks that the slot is still available.
7. The employee confirms the booking.
8. The system saves the appointment against the pseudo-ID and marks the slot as booked.
9. The system displays a confirmation to the employee and updates the therapist's assigned-appointments view.

4. Alternate Flow — Selected Slot Is No Longer Available

A1. At Step 6, the system detects that another user has already booked the selected slot.
A2. The system does not create a duplicate appointment and informs the employee that the slot is no longer available.
A3. The system displays updated availability.
A4. The employee selects another available slot and continues from Step 5, or exits without booking.

Privacy rule: Corporate email and employee ID must not be displayed in therapist-facing booking details. This specification is a proposed design based on Problem Statement #14.
